

KIWANIS CLUB OF PINEVILLE GIVEN PRIZE

Has 100 Per Cent Attendance at District Meet—Knoxville Wins the Publicity Prize—Stunt Program Enjoyed

RESOLUTIONS TO FAVOR GOOD ROADS ADOPTED

The Pineville Kiwanis club was awarded the silver loving cup for having the largest attendance at the Kentucky-Tennessee district Kiwanis convention, their attendance being 100 per cent. This being the third time it has won the cup, it now becomes their property. It was awarded by George Selig, international organizer, and was presented to the club at the closing exercises of the convention at the Manning theatre last night. The Franklin, Tenn., delegation, consisting of 38 Kiwanians which had traveled over 400 miles, will be awarded an extra cup. The Knoxville club won the publicity prize, the scrap-book kept by the Knoxville secretary, C. L. Edelman, indicating that he had gained the most newspaper publicity for his club. The Pineville club received honorable mention.

The stunt program at the Manning theatre last night was an immense hit. Jules Barzil, Canadian entertainer, dressed in plaid and kilts, was at his best. With his effervescent spirit and spontaneous humor kept the large audience in an uproar for an hour or more.

International President Edmund F. Armas and Mrs. Mrs. Armas were at the performance, though the married late. Kiwanian John Howard conducted them to the box of honor which had been reserved for them.

The playlet, "The Spirit of Kiwanis," presented by members of the Lexington Kiwanis club, was a beautiful sketch portraying in a very able manner the spirit, ideals and purpose of Kiwanis. The lighting effects were splendid and the closing scene was the National Capitol with Old Glory proudly waving in the breeze.

The cast of characters for the play follows: Merchants, John Kincaid; Dr. D. S. Marks; Doctor, R. B. Hays; Judge, Dr. Settle; Professor, Dr. J. M. Stucky; Kiwanis, El Eason; Clifton Vesselman was the technical director. Miss Virginia Slade, Rodolph Chantawna performer represented Justice in the prologue. The play has been called a classic and is undoubtedly the best contribution to Kiwanis literature.

The Indiana Senecaders furnished music for the occasion. Punch Buford, of Franklin, made a hit with his novelty dancing act. "Miss Harlan" a moving picture, showing a scene in Harlan county, came at the close of the program. Some beautiful mountain scenery was shown in the film, also a number of views in Harlan and Lynch. One scene of interest was a moonshine still in actual operation. The scenario and art titles were written by Harlan men.

The program was enjoyed from start to finish. Every seat was taken in the entire building. Boxes were occupied by officers and visiting ladies. The first floor by Kiwanians and others who had been specially invited, while the balcony was occupied by the public.

At the afternoon session the following resolutions were passed:

To thank the Kiwanis club and the people of Middlesboro for their cordial welcome and entertainment and the Middlesboro newspapers for the publicity given the district convention; to extend a vote of thanks to International President Edmund F. Armas; Roe Fulkerson, Secretary Ford, and Governor Charles Gilbert for their attendance and interest in the convention; to favor all movements for good roads in the two states; to sponsor and endorse the printers' school at J. M. C.

L. D. Hill, chairman of the registration committee, made a report on the registrations and called the roll of delegates. There were 102 voting delegates. On account of lack of time it was impossible to hear three-minute speeches from all the club presidents. Those who did not have an opportunity to speak were requested to leave written reports with the secretary so that they could be compiled into book form. President L. D. Hill, representing the Louisville club, stated that one of the chief accomplishments of his club during the year was the co-operation with other clubs which resulted during the drive in which funds were raised.

GOOD ROAD ASS'N. HEAD RESIGNS

W. C. Montgomery Selected, as Commission Chairman by Fields, Quits to Keep Politics Out

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 29.—W. C. Montgomery, whom Wm. J. Fields, Democratic candidate for Governor of Kentucky has nominated as Chairman of the State Highway Commission, yesterday tendered his resignation as president of the Kentucky Good Roads Association.

In order to keep entirely away from any political entanglement, it has always been the policy of the Good Roads Association to have no officers who are holding political offices of any kind.

In announcing this resignation, Justice L. Williams, Executive Secretary of the Good Roads Association, said that the State Executive Committee would be called together during the next few days for the purpose of electing a successor to Mr. Montgomery's letter stating his reasons for resigning, follows.

Dear Sir:

I tender my resignation as President of the Kentucky Good Roads Association to take effect at once. I do this reluctantly as I am vitally interested in the construction of the primary system of good roads in Kentucky and have looked forward with pleasure to what services I could render in this direction as President of the Kentucky Good Roads Association.

You will recall that at the meeting of the Kentucky Good Roads Association, which named me as its president, the positive position was taken that none of the officers should be selected from the Highway Commission. I most heartily endorse this proposition.

Mr. Fields, the Democratic nominee for Governor, has seen fit to name me as appointment on the Road Commission, and I have agreed to accept that appointment. Therefore, in justification of my former attitude against officials connected with the Road Department having an office in the Kentucky Good Roads Association, and the conviction that this is absolutely correct, I feel constrained to resign as President of the Kentucky Good Roads Association.

Very truly yours,
W. C. Montgomery.

DAWSON OPPOSES SELECTION PLAN

Suggestion of Roads Ass'n. Method of Choosing Highway Commission Not Complied With

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 29.—Hon. Chas. I. Dawson, Republican candidate for Governor, has written the Kentucky Good Roads Commission that he cannot comply with the request of that body to agree with the Democratic candidate for Governor in the selection of a Highway Commission.

The Association's suggestion was that the Republican candidate choose the two Republican members, the Democratic candidate the two Democratic members, and that these four men as agreed upon, would be the Commission, no matter which of the two candidates were elected. This suggestion was made with the idea of eliminating so far as possible, discussion of the personnel of the proposed Commission from the Governorship campaign.

Shortly after the suggestion was made, Mr. Dawson announced his proposed Highway Commission.

Word has also been received by the Association from Mr. Fields' secretary that the communication sent him would be brought to his attention during the next few days.

Following is the letter received from Mr. Dawson:

Dear Sir:

I have your letter and telegram suggesting that the Democratic candidate for Governor and myself get together and agree upon the members of the State Highway Commission to be appointed by that one of us who may be elected in November. You suggest that the Democratic candidate for Governor name the two Democratic members of the commission and the Republican candidate name the two Republican members of the Commission, each of the candidates pledging himself, in event of election, to appoint the persons thus agreed upon.

The Republican party is pledged to a bi-partisan highway commission, and I am pledged, by repeated declarations made to the people of Kentucky, to the appointment of men of the highest character on this commission, in event of my election. I appreciate very much the suggestion made by your Association, but it has occurred to me that what the friends of good roads in Kentucky are really interested in is the character of the commission selected and not the method of its selection. For this reason I have deemed it wise to name my own commission, and I feel very confident that the character of this commission could

HILL AND ALLISON TO BE CANDIDATES

L. D. Hill and J. W. Allison, Both Prominent Men Will Enter Commissioners' Race

L. D. Hill and J. W. Allison announced their intentions to run for the office of Middlesboro city commissioner this morning. Both are prominent business men and have a large number of friends who pledge their support. Mr. Hill moved to Middlesboro from Knoxville several years ago. Since that time he has been in the mercantile business here. He is a leader in business and church affairs and hundreds of friends are urging him to make the race.

Mr. Allison came from Kingsport, Tenn., six years ago. He has been in the lumber business during his residence here and is at present in charge of the City Lumber and Supply company. His twelve years of banking experience at Kingsport make him particularly efficient in handling finances. Like Mr. Hill, he has a host of friends who urge his nomination.

Both men are receiving encouragement from both the Democratic and the Republican party, partisan political interest not entering to any extent in the race. Both are in favor of a bigger, better and cleaner Middlesboro.

Not have been improved, even with the assistance of my Democratic opponent, who so far has indicated no desire to assist me in the selection of my commission, nor to have my assistance in the selection of his commission.

I am sure the members of the Kentucky Good Roads Association, who are familiar with the fight which has been made for good roads in Kentucky during the last few years, know that I have consistently fought to keep the Highway Department of Kentucky out of politics, and I trust that the selection which has been announced by me fully satisfies every friend of good roads in Kentucky that such shall continue to be my purpose. Thanking you for your interest in this matter, I am

Very truly yours,
Chas. I. Dawson.

Opinion of Louisville Attorney Apparently Clears Up Controversy Over Method of Retiring Proposed Bond Issue

TEST SUIT NECESSARY TO ENTIRELY SETTLE MATTER

By Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 29.—Through an opinion prepared by Allen Dodd, Louisville attorney for the Kentucky Good Roads Association and concurred in by Attorney General McGregor, doubt is apparently cleared away concerning the legality of the gasoline tax and automobile license funds being used for road purposes other than maintenance. This will greatly simplify the Good Roads program in the state, it was said, although it was pointed out that whether gasoline and license money can be used for road purpose of any character can be settled only by a test suit, Dodd advises the association.

Uncertainty in regard to the use of funds for construction and reconstruction of roads arose over phraseology used by the Court of Appeals in the suit of Murry Smith of Dayville, contesting the collection of automobile license fees. In this suit the court stated such fees could be used for "improvement and repair" of highways, Dodd said, "improvement covers a lot of ground and I consider this to mean money can be used for construction and reconstruction purposes." Any other meaning, he said, would halt the plans of the Good Roads Association, which proposes to have part of the fees used to retire the proposed bond issue.

LOCAL MAN CHARGED WITH OFFENSE AGAINST CHILD

M. D. L. Graybeal, proprietor of a small store on Luthbury avenue, is held at the city jail charged with an offense against an eleven-year-old school girl. Arrangements for his examining trial have not been made.

Policeman A. D. DeBusk made the arrest late yesterday afternoon a few minutes after the alleged attempt. He went to Graybeal's store to see, the latter on business and found the door locked. Having reasons to believe the proprietor was within, he went to the back door just as Graybeal put the girl out of it. Graybeal was promptly placed under arrest.

The child told the policeman that Graybeal took her to the rear room of the store and threatened to kill her if she made any outcry or ever told any one. She will be twelve years old next month. Graybeal had been unable to obtain counsel this morning. The prisoner is about fifty years old.

W. J. FIELDS' SON MAJORS IN INDUSTRIAL CHEMISTRY

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 29.—Frank Clifford Fields, son of W. J. Fields, the Democratic nominee for Governor of Kentucky, has no predilections for politics, judging from the course he has selected to pursue at the University of Kentucky, where he was enrolled recently. Young Fields is enrolled as a freshman in the College of Arts and Sciences at the university and has for his major subject the pursuit of Industrial Chemistry.

Young Fields is 19 years old and the second youngest son in a family of five boys and one girl. Before matriculating at the university he was a student at Eastern High School of Washington, D. C.

BAVARIANS, MOST MONARCHISTIC OF GERMANS, LED BY ADOLF HITLER, GERMAN MUSSOLINI FAVOR A RETURN TO IMPERIAL REGIME IN THE FATHERLAND

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Of all the German states, Bavaria has favored most strongly a return to monarchism ever since the revolution which overthrew the kaiser and established republicanism in the Fatherland at the World War's end.

The state did, indeed, have its own individual revolution. It deposed the Bavarian royal house, the Wittelsbachs, and subscribed to republicanism. However, Crown Prince Rupprecht, who had taken a particularly prominent part in the war as a German commander, was still very popular. All along there has been much talk of restoring the throne, with Rupprecht as ruler, any man having been spoken of him as a candidate for kaiser of all Germany, as head of a new imperial dynasty.

Hitler Heads Coup
Not only the Bavarians, especially, among Germans, seem monarchistic in

Above: Hitler troops on the march in open defiance of republican authorities. End map of the scene of trouble.

Defy Republican Government
Gathering the old soldiers about him, Hitler organized a body 500,000 strong, similar to Mussolini's "black shirts" and generally known as the "hakenkreuz," on account of the swastika cross every man wears on his brassard.

Hitler, now about 34 years old, began life as a mason but later became an architectural draftsman. He has worked also as a sign painter. Despite his lack of education, he is a man of remarkable eloquence, a magnetic leader and capable organizer. One of his hobbies is never to permit himself to be photographed, a precaution which probably has saved him from arrest many times while pushing his royalist campaign in republican Germany, outside the Bavarian frontier. In his home state he and his men show themselves freely, in defiance of the republican authorities. Bavaria, the largest of the German states, next to Prussia, both in population and area, joined the German conference 1870-71 but has always retained a singular degree of individualism in policy and characteristics.

A THOUGHT

The poor man is halted even of his own neighbor; but the rich hath many friends. —Prov. 16:21.

DEATH FOR FALSE REPORTS

The Spanish dictatorship, stung by unfounded rumors that Premier Rivero—heart and brain of the new government—had been assassinated, proclaimed a swift and sure death penalty for every person who disseminates false information. That is one way to control tongues. It is effective. But just what will good people of Spain find to talk about when a single thoughtless word may put them before a firing squad?

The big thing in government is stability. The most destabilizing thing in the world is rumor. An earthquake may shake down cities, but a single false report may rock the foundation of a nation, or turn a continent into a seething emotional volcano.

That is why unstable governments, revolutionary governments, or any administration that finds its authority challenged takes the sternest measures to suppress alarming or false reports for even damaging truth.

The last great war taught governments how easy it is to spread their actions and purposes behind a mask of censorship, and accustomed the people to reading strained news and unbalanced views. It may be a long time before there is even as much freedom of speech as there was before 1914.

In the United States it is unnecessary to rely upon prohibitions by proclamation in order to protect the nation from the devastations of rumor. The American Press, universally circulated and read, is the great stabilizer of fact and opinion. False news flies fast, but it cannot keep ahead of the time-amplifying telegraphic news wires and printing presses, and the masterful distributing organization of the circulators. Newspaper editors will be last of all to make any wild claims of near-perfection for their product. But it may set forth without fear of contradiction that the far-flung system of news distribution is of daily service in bearing swift denial of alarming and dangerous rumors that have their origin nobody knows where.

George Harvey, arriving in London, is said to have heaved a picturesque sigh of relief when told that New York is temporarily without newspapers because of a pressman's strike. But it would be no jesting matter for a great city to be cut off for even a single week from all sources of responsible news and thrown open to every whim of rumor. Spain, without a universally circulated press, furnishes an example of what happens in emergency, where there is no stabilizer have a menacing sword.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO LESLIE PRESCOTT, CARE THE SECRET DRAWER

I wonder, dear little Marquise, if you were the same in your day that they are now. From all I have read in the histories and biographies of court life and courtiers, it seems to me there were just as many tragedies then as there are today. And almost all these tragedies were the tragedies of women.

I just hate Harry Ellington. He seems to me to be utterly without honor and utterly without morals. I don't believe he cares a solitary thing about Ruth and yet he makes her life miserable by criticism of her looks, her action, and even her thought. If they are exposed where he can hear them.

Yesterday Ruth came to me, weeping as though her heart would break. "I don't believe I can go through it Leslie," she said. "I think I shall have to stop for three days and when I telephone to his office this morning he had the girl tell me his wife—that he was too busy to talk to me."

When Harry and I were first married I really worshipped him. He seemed so splendid and so fine, but I soon learned that his feet were clay. I remember early in his married life I cut a bit of verse from the papers that seemed to tell the whole story.

Ruth looked into her pocketbook and brought out a yellowed and worn piece of news paper and this is what she read to me:

"She crowned him with a laurel wreath And gazed into his eyes beneath To see his soul arise; She laid her trusting head upon his heart."

On the summit of 11 of the 38 mountains he traversed, Clyde failed to find evidence of anyone else having scaled them. That's another record, say professional mountain climbers here.

Clyde's highest climb was Mt. Wilbur, whose peak rises 9287 feet above the sea level. At its summit he left as his cairn, a monument to the late Dr. Wynn, mountain climber of national fame, who had made many unsuccessful attempts to scale this height. It took him three hours to build it, a pyramid of rocks which will withstand the fiercest elements, he says.

ONLY OCCASIONALLY Every so often I say to myself, "What is the use of this struggle for self?"

Why not be leisurely, why not be calm, sail to some island where under a palm

I can doze happily day after day, letting the busy world roll as it may: Why should I work myself into a effort?"

That is the sort of thing that I say Every so often.

Every so often I contemplate going Where there are roses eternally growing. Some place where foot almost drops in your lap.

Only to go there takes money, and Haven't enough of the Needful laid by.

So life stays hard and refuses to soften. Still, I can dream of a kinder sky. Every so often.

Every so often, and once in a while, I long for life on a tropical isle, Where there is nothing whatever to do.

Only to loaf under skies that are blue. Yet, when the first subtle spell has declined, I want to be bored by a life of that kind.

Wary of breezes that constantly soften, Loafing is pleasant, but only, I find, Every so often.

WEATHER BUREAU

Summary of weather and crop conditions in Kentucky for the week ending Tuesday, September 25, 1923:

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 29.—Temperatures averaging near normal were favorable for growth, but the showery conditions that prevailed during the first half of the week delayed ripening and prevented seasonal progress with farm work. Precipitation was moderate in amount in the extreme northern counties, but it was generally heavy to excessive in the southern and western agricultural districts. The rains interfered seriously with cutting and housing tobacco, causing the shortage of labor to be more acutely felt. On account of the damp weather, cutting proceeded very slowly, with occasional reports of sweating or "houseburn". The condition in barns improved with the fair weather of the last half of the week. The rains were favorable in the Dark district where they were heaviest; but the winds were too light to spread the infection, hence it remains in "spots" and is not causing much damage. In the northern area of light rainfall late corn and tobacco made good progress toward maturity; but the growth of these crops was delayed in the wet districts, which included about two-thirds of the State. Late potatoes are good to excellent in the north-central and northeastern potato growing sections, and are fair to good in the western counties where they have suffered from lack of sunshine and too much rain. All late crops are badly in need of two weeks of dry, warm weather. Some early corn, but only the dryest can be shocked without the risk of molding. Plowing for grain is still very much delayed on account of other work, not much being accomplished during the week. A great deal of corn is badly wind blown, and will have to be cut before grain can be sown. All grasses are rank and vigorous. Young clover is fine, although quite weedy. Except for an unusual growth of weeds, pastures continue in excellent condition. Cows and the fourth crop of alfalfa are good, but the weather has been too wet to make good hay.

COOKE REQUESTED TO BE COMMISSIONER CANDIDATE

Charles E. Cooke, former Middlesboro postmaster, is being besieged from all quarters to be a candidate for city commissioner. Friends from both political parties assure him of their support and of their confidence in his victory if he should decide to run for the office.

Mr. Cooke has not definitely decided whether or not he will accept the nomination. "It is hard to refuse to respond to the call of my friends and fellow citizens," he told a News representative this morning. "Please express through your columns my appreciation of the many assurances of support and expressions of confidence and friendship which are worth more than all else."

Economical Cake Recipe

This cake recipe might well be named "three in one" cake.

But there are even more than three ways of varying the rule, and with remarkable results.

The whites and yolks of eggs may be used, or just the yolks, saving the whites for frosting. When eggs are scarce this is a decided economy and the cake itself is a delicious yellow cake.

If two tablespoons cocoa are added the cake develops into a fluffy devil's food without the effort of grating and melting chocolate. Here is a saving of time in both the grating and dish washing.

By the addition of spices a tender soft spice cake, requiring no icing, results.

Or a layer cake with a custard filling and chocolate icing can be made when eggs are more plentiful and there are guests "to tea."

Half the rule can be used, saving the white of the egg for a Washington cream pie. This is an excellent "emergency dessert." Jam or custard can be used for filling and the egg white well beaten with two tablespoons of sugar piled over the top.

Cake Recipe

One and one-half cups sugar, 1-2 cup butter and lard mixed (scant), 1 cup sour milk, 2 cups flour, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla.

Cream shortening and sugar. Add yolks of eggs well beaten. Mix and sift flour, cream or tartar and salt. Add to first mixture and mix perfectly smooth. Dissolve soda in sour milk and stir into mixture. If whites of eggs are used, add, beaten until stiff and dry, the last thing before baking. Turn into an oiled and floured cake pan or two layer-cake pans and bake in a moderate oven.

To measure shortening: Fill measuring cup half full of water and add enough butter and lard mixed to almost fill the cup. The water of course will rise to the top of the cup. The cup should be more than seven-eighths full, but the level full. Pour off water and shortening is ready to use. Lard and butter are quite as good for a spice or chocolate cake as all butter. Lard making the cake more tender and puffy than all butter.

White or Yellow

If a delicate white or yellow cake is desired all butter gives a richer, better flavor.

To make a chocolate cake add two tablespoons of cocoa with flour, using one tablespoon less of flour as cocoa will slightly thicken the cake. The whole eggs or just the yolks are used. One white can be used for a loaf cake and one white used for icing.

To make a spice cake omit vanilla from original cake rule and add one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon cloves, one-half teaspoon spice.

To make a cream pie use half of all ingredients, putting the yolk of one egg in the batter and saving the white for the top.

To measure one half teaspoon, fill teaspoon level full of soda or cream of tartar or whatever is to be measured, divide in half the long way of the spoon, using a thin-bladed knife.

Stuffed Apples

Four large apples, 1-2 pound bulk sausage, whole cloves.

Wash apples and remove cores. Stick a few cloves into the flesh of the apples. Fill cavities of apples with sausage. Put in a baking dish with a very little water. Cover and put in a hot oven for 20 minutes. Reduce heat and remove cover and bake an hour in a slow oven. Baste with the juice in the pan.

Oysters

"R is for oysters" reads an old "Book of Foods." And while it sounds more or less like a riddle to the uninitiated it means much. Any month spelled with an "R" is reasonable for oysters.

In this day and age we think less of the seasonability of foods than did our grandmothers. Fruits and vegetables are shipped from the south to the northern markets the whole year through, making it possible to eat June peas in January and September cauliflower in May.

But oysters simply are "in" from September to April and "out" from May to August. This season has grown even shorter the last few years due to the fact that the oyster beds are being contaminated in many places.

Oysters are higher and scarcer because the supply must come from pure ocean water. These beds are now found only in outlying districts far from manufacturing zones. The remote areas are naturally small and the cost of production and marketing is greater than in the great beds in the bays and rivers of the more accessible part of the coast.

The food value of oysters is high. They are easily digested and very nutritious.

During the season there is no better first course for a formal dinner than raw oysters, served on the half shell with lemon juice or with a cocktail sauce.

If served with a sauce the oysters are thoroughly chilled and served in cocktail glasses with the sauce poured over them.

Oyster Cocktail

Six or seven small oysters for each cocktail, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon tomato catsup, 1 teaspoon minced celery, 1-2 teaspoon minced green peppers, 2 drops Tabasco sauce, 1-8 teaspoon salt, few gratings nutmeg, 1-8 teaspoon horseradish root.

Chill oysters. Mix ingredients and chill. Pour over oysters in glasses. Serve at once.

This sauce is also served in a small glass in the center of a plate of oysters on the half shell. Each oyster is dipped in the sauce as it is eaten. In serving oysters on the shell care should be taken that each oyster is loosened and free in the shell.

Oyster Cocktail II

Four oysters for each serving, 2 sections of grapefruit, 3 drops onion juice, 1-2 teaspoon minced celery, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, salt, nutmeg, paprika.

Cut grapefruit in half and scoop out pulp with a strong teaspoon. Use four pieces of grapefruit for each cocktail. Add onion juice, celery, salt and nutmeg and chill. Chill oysters. Mix and sprinkle with paprika. Serve very cold.

Oyster Salad

One pint oysters, 2 grapefruit, 1-2 cup finely chopped celery, 1 green pepper, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 6 tablespoons oil, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon powdered sugar, few gratings nutmeg, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, paprika, hearts of lettuce.

Clean oysters and drain. Remove pulp from grapefruit. Scald pepper and rub off outer filmy covering. Chill and crisp. Mix oysters, celery and pepper cut in shreds. Chill. Mix salt, sugar and nutmeg with lemon juice. Beat in oil thoroughly chilled. Pour over first mixture and let stand on ice for 15 minutes. Serve on hearts of lettuce. Sprinkle with paprika.

Entente Between The Soft Coal Mining Industry and Government Encouraged By These Operators

W. H. CUNNINGHAM

S. PEMBERTON HUTCHINSON

"Less government in business" doesn't mean a divorce between industry and those in high places selected and appointed to keep the ship of state from rocking too much.

Acting on this, the National Coal Association, made up of producers of bituminous coal, recently appointed nineteen prominent operators to serve on its Government Relations Committee. Walter H. Cunningham, of Huntington, W. Va., shown at the left above, was selected as chairman. S. Pemberton Hutchinson, of Philadelphia, Pa., shown opposite Mr. Cunningham, is one of the prominent operators active on the Government Relations Committee.

The activities of this committee are described in a general way by the name. Since the formation of the United States Coal Commission, and the first threat of an anthracite strike, the committee has taken on added importance. A special committee was formed to co-operate with the Coal Commission in determining and presenting all of the essential facts about the soft coal business, but the Government Relations Committee has co-operated with this special committee.

When emergencies arise requiring close contact between the bituminous coal industry generally and the federal government, this committee is of tremendous service to the government and therefore to the American people. Emergencies of war or peace call this committee to the top notch of activity. It gives government officials a point of contact with the industry which makes the necessary co-operation efficient and far simpler than would be the case if the industry were not organized to meet such crises.

Organization among the soft coal operators is, in a way, a remarkable thing, as there are thousands of independent operators and thousands of mines in the bituminous coal fields of the country, which are scattered through thirty of the forty-eight states of the Union. The very largest single coal company produces less than five percent of the annual consumption of soft coal in America. Nothing approaching price fixing is possible with this sort of condition existing, and the keenest business rivalry naturally results.

Recognizing that, in a great and important industry such as satisfying the bituminous coal needs of the nation, serious trouble is immediately reflected in practically all other industries, the operators have pooled their brains for the service of the people at short notice when the emergency arises.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE WORLD

Europe, Japan, Oklahoma, Prohibition
Chancellor Stresemann admits out- and-out that France has beaten Ger- many in the Ruhr. He agrees to prac- tically everything France wants. But he adds a few "ifs." They're unim- portant but fall slightly short of un- conditional surrender. That's what France demands. So a settlement's delayed but probably not for long. The trouble is, terms with France threaten a revolt in Germany—by workers or royalists or, in various places, both.

France and England
Premiers Baldwin and Poincare of England and France have met and agreed, it's announced, on a policy en- abling their countries to work in harmony again. Their relations have been strained for some time. Unfor- tunately, few believe they can esca- pate long. Their interests conflict.

In the Balkans
Greece has knuckled down to Italy but an Italian indemnity bill still out- stands against the Greeks. Italy and Jugoslavia have come to no settlement yet over recent signs of irresponsible ambitions on the Italian premier, Mus- solini's part.

Bulgaria in Revolt
A counter rebellion reported in Bulgaria, where the militarist cabinet recently overthrew Premier Stamboul- sky's farm blue regime. The mili- tarists profess to have put it down, but their version isn't fully believed. It's rumored soviet influence is at work.

Russian Aid Refused

Right after the Japanese earth- quake a Russian soviet ship entered Tokyo Bay to offer aid. But the captain said he came to help "work- ers"—nobody else. The Japanese sent the ship on her way, declining such re- lief. The Russian account is that the Japanese authorities were helping in- fluential people mostly and bothering little about the rest. They say that's why the captain specified "workers"—he thought they needed help.

Order Went Unheeded
The Japanese government forbade

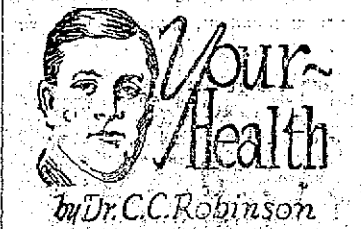

American warships to cross Tokyo Bay's fortified lines, dire enough the need of thousands on shore. Japanese destroyers crossed these lines but not to relieve general distress. They did it to get the body of an imperial prince who'd been killed. They disregarded even stretcher cases among others. So the American ships crossed the fortified lines anyway, did much good work and took off several hundred foreign refugees.

Faction in Oklahoma

Martial law prevails in Oklahoma. It was an anti-Ku-Klux measure that Governor Walton called the mili- tia out. Opponents of his course say this was unnecessary and that he's violated the state constitution, ho- sides. A majority of the members of the state House of Representatives have signed a call for a special session to deal with the situation. Walton has threatened to put them in jail if they meet and adds that it will be an illegal session anyway.

Wets and Dries

Statistics show government agents seized 5,000 moonshine stills in the past year. Also 2,000,000 gallons of wash. There's nothing to indicate how much the agents didn't find. Mayor Dever of Chicago is waging an anti-beer fight and 2,300 barrels of beer were confiscated in one day. A dry paper complains that while Chi- cago has many citizens who usually "are" eager to help a warfare against crime, "we miss this activity in the present campaign."

How To Sleep

Sleep is nature's great medicine for rest and rejuvenation of the body. There are a number of hygienic principles and psychological facts in- volved if one wishes to make sleep a profound study. But for the laymen, the facts are easy to state and to understand.

The body's condition approaching sleep is a most important factor. Try to relax completely, throw aside care and make up your mind to repose. Avoid excitement before the regular scheduled sleep hour.

It is best to be regular in sleep and eight hours should be the minimum.

Seek sleep preferably with a stom- ach practically empty. If you have to induce sleep by eating, it is like put- ting off a task which only waits to bother you later. Food taken in this way diverts the blood supply from the head to the stomach, which may break your rest later.

Cleanliness is a great factor in in- ducing sleep. A warm bath of only a few minutes' duration is a wonder- ful aid.

Worry and fear must be cast aside if sleep is to be deep and refreshing. They cause dreams which disturb with frequent awakenings and often leave a headache in the morning.

Do not sleep on your back with arms extended above your head. The nerve centers in the back and spinal cord often become tired or cause restlessness in this position. Another bad effect of sleeping on the back is that it seems to induce mouth breathing, pro- ducing dryness of the mucous lining of the mouth and throat, hence rest- lessness, coughing and broken rest.

The best position is on the right side or prone, with the right arm at your side and the left arm resting easily and slightly above the head. Keep the legs and spine straight. Remember that one-third of your life should be spent in sleep.

A hard mattress is much better than a soft bed.

Do not sleep with too much cover- ing; on the other hand avoid sleeping cold, as this causes restlessness and light, unhealthy sleep.

Leave the windows open winter and summer.

Massage
Massage may be called a body or skin and nerve tonic. It invigorates the body without the usual doping of any tonic medicines.

In many so-called nervous troubles it does great aid with very little ex- haustion to the central nervous sys- tem. Massage also aids metabolism (the chemical process of repair and waste in the body) and does much toward muscle development. It is particularly an aid to the facial mus- cles, which receive little or no exer- cise. These may be stimulated, round- ed out and the face contour improved by massage. The abdominal muscles are tightened up, aided and strength- ened by massage, while the great mus- cles of the back and shoulders may be developed and improved by this treat- ment.

I am not advocating any special form or system of massage as a treat- ment for anything. The question at issue is the value of massage or skill- ful rubbing or kneading of the outer skin or muscles toward an improve- ment, flexibility and soothing condi- tion of the body as a general help on the high road to health.

Of course massage is only a nat- ural, simple process to encourage the circulation. Free or increased cir- culation means more blood. More blood means better supply to the tissues and cells which in many persons are little used and consequently not fully developed. A blood renewal through massage produces a healthy normal tone which the muscles and nerve system share in the general toning-up process.

Sprains

Watch your step is perhaps the best known of all slogans that has been used since Safety First has been em- ployed in safeguarding the factory, business and home. To be sure of your footing and that the landing place is a safe support for your weight when alighting from a train, car or any vehicle is one of the greatest precau- tionary means of avoiding accidents and sprains.

Also teach your children to look be- fore they leap in order to make sure that their feet may not slip or slide and endanger their ankles, knees, arms, fingers or toes to severe sprains, which are sometimes worse than frac- tures and result in a permanent dis- torted or swollen condition of limbs or joints.

The result of a bad sprain may in- deed be serious. The turning or twist- ing causes intense pain, so that if the sprain is part of your locomotion out- fit, the strained member cannot per- form its work properly. Swelling and discoloration, as in a severe bruise, add to your discomfort. In the case of a slight sprain, the injured member should be given a complete rest and recovery usually occurs in a few days. No treatment is necessary, other than a hot application or soaking in hot water for 20 minutes or a half hour, as soon after the accident as possi- ble.

When a severe sprain occurs the muscles and ligaments are so severe- ly pulled, wrangled and twisted that they become highly inflamed, swollen and painful. Absolute rest is neces- sary. Be sure that the sprained mem- ber is slightly elevated and a soothing liniment applied. When the in- flammation and acute pain have lessened you may use a soap liniment or rub- rafin liniment to gently rub the sprained parts daily.

Move the injured member just a lit- tle each day until more freedom of movement is noticed. Do not attempt to walk or use a sprained arm or wrist without the carefully support- ing dressings which are an absolute necessity in case of sprains.

Florida Lady Was in a Miserable Condition, But Says She Found Cardui Helpful, and Got Well.

Altha, Fla.—In explaining how she found Cardui so helpful during change of life, Mrs. Ella M. Bailey, of Route 2, this place, said:

"I became so weakened it was an effort for me to get around. I knew what was the matter, but I felt like I couldn't give up."

"I just dragged, and I certainly was nervous. I was so restless I could not sit down long—yet so weak I couldn't get about. It is a most miserable and such a helpless feeling."

"I would get depressed and out of heart."

"I began to feel, after awhile, there was no use to try to get well. This is all wrong, for it makes a person worse."

"I had heard of Cardui, and thought it might strengthen me. A neighbor had used it with good results."

"I took one bottle (of Cardui), then I saw I wasn't so nervous, so kept it up. Gradually the nervousness left me. I began to eat and sleep better. Was soon well, and all right. Cardui did wonders for me, and I certainly do recommend it."

Thousands of other women have writ- ten, to tell of the beneficial results obtain- ed by taking Cardui, and to recommend it to others.

WALKS, TALKS AND THINKS LIKE LINCOLN, SO "ABE LINK" IS HIS NICKNAME

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 26.—Reincarnation or resemblance?

Abraham Lincoln has come to Worcester, certainly in resemblance is not in reincarnation. Fame surrounds a young man named Arthur M. Bennett because he looks like Lincoln, acts like him, talks like him—and, they say, even thinks as Lincoln did.

Startling coincidences such as these have put Bennett under a long observation by Andrew O'Connor, the sculptor who is noted for his statues of Lincoln and who, in his work, has made a study of the Lincoln anatomy.

"From the eyes down," says O'Connor, "the faces and figures of Lincoln and Bennett are nearly identical. Build up the forehead a little and the resemblance is absolutely startling."

Bennett, who has been a printer and a toolmaker, and the past summer a guide at Mooshead Lake in the Maine Woods, is called "Abe Link" by fellow workmen in Worcester.

Lincoln was six feet, three inches tall. So is Bennett. And he has the same rugged features, the same strong lines at the mouth, the humorous yet kindly lips, the deep set eyes, and the almost ungainly length of leg below the knee.

"He walks like Lincoln," says Charles Huxley, 81, one-time soldier and secretary at the White House, who often saw Lincoln at close range in the fall of 1864.

Bennett has appeared in several impersonations of Lincoln. And those who know him say that without consciously trying he has acquired the philosophy of Lincoln, which rings true in words and actions. He has the emancipator's shyness, and talks little—and not at all about his resemblance to Lincoln.

ARTHUR M. BENNETT, WORCESTER, MASS., PRINTER AND TOOLMAKER, IN A STARTLING IMPRESSION OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN—AND AS HE IS.

8-YEAR-OLD WIZARD STUDENT IN HIGHSCHOOL; COULD READ AND WRITE AT TWO, YET HE'S NO "GRIND"; LIKES FOOTBALL AND RADIO

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 29.—A high school student at eight, Arthur Gottesman, son of an Atlantic clothing manufacturer, expects to enter Harvard at an age when most boys are still in their sixth grade in elementary school.

Yet he has none of the temperaments of a genius. He is just a "regular feller" who likes his football as well as his books, his radio as well as his home work.

When but two years old, the boy could read and write with unusual ability. The following year he was an interested reader of newspapers, and now his mental feats are the subject of country-wide comment. He entered the third grade at the age of six, which is the minimum age for enrolling in Atlanta public schools.

He spent a year in the fourth grade—"a lot of time wasted," he says.

Then he buckled down to work and completed the fifth grade work in less than two weeks. He "loafed" a year in the sixth grade, took half a year for the seventh grade and now is doing high school work alongside boys eight and nine years his senior.

"We did not push him," says his grammar school principal. "We gave him the regular work but he completed that so quickly we were forced to try him on something else. His average mark was A during his grammar school career."

In a recent mental test in which the average of his classmates, about twice as old as he, was 80, Arthur's mark was 169.

But he's popular with his fellow students. He has none of that bookish air common to so many youthful prodigies. He's one of the most ardent football fans, and plays the game as well as any of his size.

ARTHUR GOTTESMAN

Conn Doyle is his favorite author, of Sherlock Holmes is too overdrawn for real life.

"I like to go to school," he says, "but I don't think I'd like to be a school teacher."

"Harvard is a great school. I am anxious to get there and see Dr. Elmer so that I may ask him on what basis he selected his representative books."

Arthur can name the presidents of the United States, can name the states, their capitals and population; and can name the capital of practically every country on the globe.

KIWANIS CLUB

to improve the Kentucky Children's Home also done much for the good roads movement. Mr. Cope introduced L. B. Carter, nominee for lieutenant governor.

Dr. J. A. Stucky, president of the Lexington club, stated that his club was making efforts to have a law passed in Kentucky which will provide that the word "Poison" be placed on concentrated fruit cans.

his club had brought a knitting mill to town and they had promoted a banquet attended by 120 farmers which had resulted in a closer relationship between them and the business men.

O. H. Pollard, president of the Jackson club, stated that it was only four months old, but had already begun to build up a spirit of good fellowship and co-operation in the community. "Not even the mask of the Ku-Klux Klan has been able to disturb our spirit of co-operation," he declared, "and our Kiwanis club has already bared its fangs to fight this hooded order which seeks to spread discord among us."

He spoke of their efforts to promote the building of the Buffalo Trail.

Mr. Bennett of the Irvine-Ravenna club stated that his club had sponsored the movement to float $210,000 bond issue which had carried recently.

Dr. L. M. Scott, representing the Johnson City, Tenn., club told of the work of his club for the Boy Scouts and of their co-operation with the Red Cross and P. T. A. to aid the underprivileged child.

H. S. Carpenter, Jenkins, stated that his club had 15 active committees but that they were concentrating their efforts at present on promotion of the good roads movement. This club is only 12 weeks old.

The text is composed of Paul's memorable words to young Timothy, concerning his mother and grandmother.
